Surprifing Wonder, &c.

In the parish of St. Clement, Oxford, Mr. Henry Watts, a Minister, being a worthy and devout gentlemen, taking every week extraordinary pains in instructing his parishoners, going from house to house to confirm them in their christian faith and principles; and where he found any in great necessity he would not only relieve them to the utmost of his abilities, but would promote and put forward weekly contributions, often preach ing upon the christian and divine subject of charity. And indeed he was the wonder of those parts, by his practising that heavenly duty. Those good offices he has from time to time performed, since he has been minister of that place, which was near twelve years.

But how great the grief of his parishoners, especially the poorer fort, when he fell into a swoon, and dropped from his chair, to the surprize of all present. They gave him comfortable cordials, but to no effect. So his friends finding him breathless, prepared for his suneral, which was appointed to be on the third day after his supposed death, being in his coffin, and without any appearance of life; nay, he was even cold.

The third day being come, the Rev. Mr. Wilkinson was made choice of to preach the funeral fermon, the substance of which was as suilows, viz.

BELOVED FRIENDS AND CHRISTIANS,

I HAVE no need to give you the character of our departed brother and fellow-labourer in the Lorp: His parts, piety, and goodness were sufficiently known to all; the blessed effects of which, no doubt, but by this time, through the mercies of our Saviour, make him shine among the elect in the kingdom of God. When living here, he was a lively pattern to imitate. His sickness, and uncommon patience under it, considering its violence, may teach us submission under afflictions; his daily considering how sweet and easy God madetto him, may give us comfort and consolation as gainst that dreadful moment of our own, provided we trace him in all godly performances of his infinite life. Which that we may do God of his infinite goodness endue us with grace, through the merits of our Lord Jesus Christ, to whom with the Father and the Holy Spirit, be all honour and glory, now and for evermore. Amen.

Dr. Wilkinson had no sooner ended his fermon, and was going towards the grave, to perform the usual ceremonies, but to his, and all other people's surprise, a noise of groaning was heard in the cosin, just as they were putting it into the ground; whereupon it was opened, and to the astonishment of all, Mr. Watts rising up, faintly bid them not to be assaid; being carried homes and put in a warm bed, and receiving some comfortable things, he recovered, and sitting up in bed he related to the standers by what he had seen, in the manner following.

As foon as my foul was feparated from this lump of clay, all my fins were exposed to me, seeming as if engraved on a marble table, in crimson letters, the scroll was very large, and every tittle of them being brought stells to my mind, it caused me almost to despair. When at that very instant an angel projected me with a white and pleasant roll, in which my holy prayers and charitable acts were written in letters of gold, which out stined tto him, may give as comfort and coeff letter as my faults, and brought joy to my foul. So waiting and expecting or my fentence, this heavenly person bid me return and declare to the world as follows:

There shall be great figns and visions which shall be shewn from Heaven to testify the Lord's coming at hand, to judge the world in righteousness; this will be a year of great wars and bloodshed among the armies abroad, and two great towns will be taken, after an obstinate and bloody resistance; after which a bloody battle will be fought. which will then be most terrible. And in the end will be a peace; there shall be no more clashing of fwords, noise of great guns, or dying of foldiers. After this shall be a year of great fickness, which will happen in the kingdom; the small-pox, fevers, and agues will prove fatal. And there shall be many figns feen in the air, of armies fighting, and very great earthquakes in Spain and Italy, which do great damage; and great confusion will happen in the falling of a shower of blood in Conflantinople: many Furks will be converted to the Christian faith, an me develo onw at about

Thus, my friends, I have delivered to you what I have feen and heard, faithfully. Upon which Mrs. Watts, his lifter, asked him if he could give any certain testimony for human satisfaction of his being in another world.

He replied, Yes, dear lister, I can, and therefore desired to speak with her in private; when he rold her of many sins, which she confessed with tears, no one knew but God and herself.

Upon this strange rumour, many ungodly persons came by way of derision to know whether he could reveal their sins or not? who no sooner approached him, but he recited to them the actions of their past lives, to their astonishment, repentance, and conversion.

He having recieved his strength, the next Sunday he gave notice to those who were at his intended funeral to be at church, when he preached the following discourse.

Lord; he who believeth in me, though he were dead, yet he shall live, and whosoever liveth and believeth in me, shall never die."

THESE words of our Saviour were spoken in answer to Mantha, who seemed to doubt, of the literal meaning and signification thereof; for it was when Lazarus had been dead four days and the was so grounded in her human opinion, that she thought it impossible for Christ to raise him again, as appeared by her repeated arguments or contradictions, saying, My Lord, by this time he stinketh, for he hath been dead four days. But, said our Saviour, verse 40. "Said I not unto thee, if thou wouldest believe, thou shalt see the glory of God." Indeed Martha, seemed to think if Christ had been with Lazarus when alive; he would immediately have healed his disorder; but being dead, she, with Mary concluded it necessary to hope for his resurrection. Read the whole chapter at your leisure, and observe how miraculously Lazarus was raised to life, after he had been dead four days.

Beloved, God's arm is not shortened; his powe is not lessened; that wonderful and strange mirar cles might convince obstinate unbelievers. I am in hopes this unspeakable Providence vouchsafed to me, was appointed for some great end, in order to restrain such stubborn people; however, by this eminent dispensation, we may, as in a glass, view the unbounded mercles of God, who sent me back again upon a great and mighty errand, and that in an extraordinary manner, thereby to make his power and greatness unquestionable; and that vain and impious men may have no matter of argument to withstand the truth of the gospel.

I am heartily glad I am accounted worthy to bear testimony of the exceeding goodness as well as infinite power of our Creator, and will not only be a means to strengthen your faith, but confirm and support it, and that under the greatest difficulties that any human difaster may occasion.

I have many other things to add, but being fomewhat faint, by reason of my indisposition, I shall refer the prosecution of this subject to the next opportunity God is pleased to afford me; to whose protection I earnestly recommend you all. AMEN.
